No book has captured the magic and sense of possibility of the first snowfall better than The Snowy Day. "I love all of Ezra Jack Keats's books about Peter ("The Snowy Day," "A Letter to Amy," "Hi, Cat!," "Whistle for Willie"), because they show a black boy in the city and the stories are just about his curiosity, his bravery and his being a kid. They are beautiful meditations on the interiority of black childhood without trauma while still feeling very black." — Kaitlyn Greenidge, NYT Parenting contributor and author	Ezra Jack Keats Puffin Books ISBN-13: 978-0140501827
	The Colors of Us This board book explains all the different colours of people describing those colours using food (French toast and honey, for example). While racism as a broad term isn't discussed, it reminds kids that people can't be painted using the same brush.	Karen Katz Square Fish ISBN-13: 978-0805071634

	Antiracist Baby With nine simple steps, parents can start their kids on a path toward being anti-racist. From seeing and accepting all colors to admitting when we do or say something that is racist, babies and parents can follow a list toward antiracism	Ibram Kendi, X Kokila ISBN-13: 978-0593110416
	Saturday A mom and her daughter, Ava, always look forward to Saturdays because it's the one day of the week they get to spend together without school or work. On this particular Saturday, though, they experience a series of disappointments. Nothing seems to be going as planned. Still, thanks to Ava they figure out a way to enjoy their time together. A quiet yet profound picture book.	Oge Mora Little, Brown Young Readers US ISBN-13: 978-0316431279
	Lets talk about race Good for all ages, the book explains that every person has a story to his or her life (birthday, favourite color, favourite time of day, how many brothers and sisters) and explains that race is part of that story. It reminds kids that race isn't all that we are, but only one part of the story.	Karen Barbour HarperCollins ISBN-13: 978-0064462266

	Hair Love Written by a former N.F.L. wide receiver and now an Oscar-winning short film, 'Hair Love' tells the story of a black father learning to do his daughter's hair for the first time and the special bond they share.	Matthew Cherry Puffin ISBN-13: 978-0241406427
	Each Kindness A new girl, Maya, shows up at school, and the whole class, including Chloe, our main character, shuns her because she's shabbily dressed and seems different. This goes on for a while, and then Maya is suddenly gone, and Chloe realizes she's missed her chance to be kind. This is a powerful picture book that bravely ends with regret.	Jacqueline Woodson G P Putnam's Sons ISBN-13: 978-0399246524
	The Other Side A fence separates two homes in a town in the 1960s. Told from the perspective of a young black girl, she meets a young white girl her same age and is first told not to talk to her or stare at her in town. The two slowly become friends and learn about inclusion. This book allows parents a chance to discuss the imagery of the fence and what kids can learn about being on either side.	Jacqueline Woodson Non Basic Stock Line ISBN-13: 978-0399231162

The Youngest Marcher It's one of the more shocking and little-known stories of the civil rights movement: In 1963, the City of Birmingham jailed hundreds of kids for joining the Children's March. Among them was 9-year-old Audrey Faye Hendricks, taken from her family to spend a week behind bars, eating 'oily grits' and sleeping on a bare mattress. Levinson and Newton keep her story bright and snappy, emphasizing the girl's eagerness to make a difference and her proud place in her community.

Day you begin There will be times when you walk into a room and no one there is quite like you. There are many reasons to feel different. Maybe it's how you look or talk, or where you're from; maybe it's what you eat, or something just as random. It's not easy to take those first steps into a place where nobody really knows you yet, but somehow you do it.
