Why we need your support

Callum's story

Every night, Callum curled up beside his little brother, shivering under a thin duvet. The chill in the air was nothing compared to the fear in his heart—the shouting downstairs, the crashing of doors, the uncertainty of what would come next. What the next hour and day would bring.

At school, he couldn't concentrate, and his teacher noticed the dark circles under his eyes. Callum wanted to fit in so badly that he started making up elaborate stories. His teacher recognised the signs of a struggling child and gently suggested to his mother, Cora, reach out to Barnardos.

When Amy, our Family Support Worker, visited Callum's home, the air was heavy with stress. Cora had recently separated from Callum's father due to the violence at home. She was scared, lost, and felt completely alone.

Cora had tried hard to build a different life for her boys – different from the one she grew up in. But when things fell apart, she felt like she was letting them down. Cora said that Callum and his little brother once had their own blankets, in their own beds, but when things grew mouldy in their damp home, they couldn't afford to replace them. Her love for her children was clear, but she didn't know where to turn.

That's when Barnardos stepped in – to support Cora on her new journey and in their new life, and to help support her to be the best Mam she could be for her boys. The two boys joined our After School Clubs too, so Cora knew they were getting a hot meal every day. Now Callum and his family are thriving, knowing we are here whenever they need us.

Partnering with Barnardos ensures that we can provide Family Support Services to families like Callum's when they need it most.

"I used to donate when something big happened or at specific times of the year, but becoming a monthly donor via our Payroll feels like I am helping the cause on a regular basis, so they can plan and help families and children on a regular basis. For the cost of a few cups of coffee I feel I am doing something more meaningful."
